Portrait of Cleric

Oil on canvas, h. 23" x w. 20.25" framed, h. 15" x w. 12" canvas size

The man's identification as a cleric rests on his white collar, dark tunic and stern expression. His eyes are blankly staring, exuding little vivacity. In spite of his grim demeanor, which is noted in his smooth skin, there are hints of informality, especially in the gray streaks in his hair and hairline receding at the temple. Leandro Bassano is the son of Jacopo Bassano, 16th-century north Italian genre painter and scion of a family of artists.
